ABSTRACT

Thirty-five accredited library schools responded to a questionnaire distributed in 1974 to collect comparable data on library collections, personnel, and budgets. The resulting directory provides information on each school of library science. The listing for each school includes information on its library collections, staff, and interlibrary loan policy, and on its publications and thesis requirements. The survey data are also displayed in comprehensive tables. (DS)

Introduction

This project grew out of a suggestion made at the ALA Conference in New York, 1974. There, a group of Library Science Librarians got together and began to make plans for sharing information and expertise. The group, though small, is still going and met again in San Francisco at the 1975 ALA Conference.

This directory is aimed at providing Library Science Librarians, Deans and Directors of Library Schools, University Librarians, and Library Planners with accurate information about Library Science Libraries, both collections and staff. Not only is this information useful for comparative purposes, but hopefully librarians with similar interests and problems can contact each other.

A questionnaire was mailed in the Fall of 1974 to all accredited Library Schools. Since then a number of new schools have been accredited. Unfortunately time did not allow us to gather information on those schools.

Hopefully this publication will be an annual directory. With accreditations announced at the Annual Conference, reporting forms could be sent out in August and the directory compiled to be distributed by November each year.

Please send comments and suggestions which will be used in compiling the next directory to Mrs. Carol S. Nielsen, 114 Manning Hall, School of Library Science, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514.
